RADIOGRAPHY RESEARCH NETWORK

The Radiography Research Network (RRN) is a service of the EFRS and is only accessible for members, staff and students of the EFRS member organizations.

To apply for access to the RRN you can check under our members here: Members Page. If your national society or university is an EFRS member organization. If yes, you can then apply with them to get access.

In this ERFS network, that integrates functions similar to LinkedIn, research gate and other social media platforms you will be able to contact other researchers, exchange information, publish documents, create groups, post messages, share events, etc.

If you are logged in, you can also navigate to other pages of the website using the menu. To return to RRN please use the button you have used to login:

WALL

The purpose of RRN is to enable the community to share content with each other.
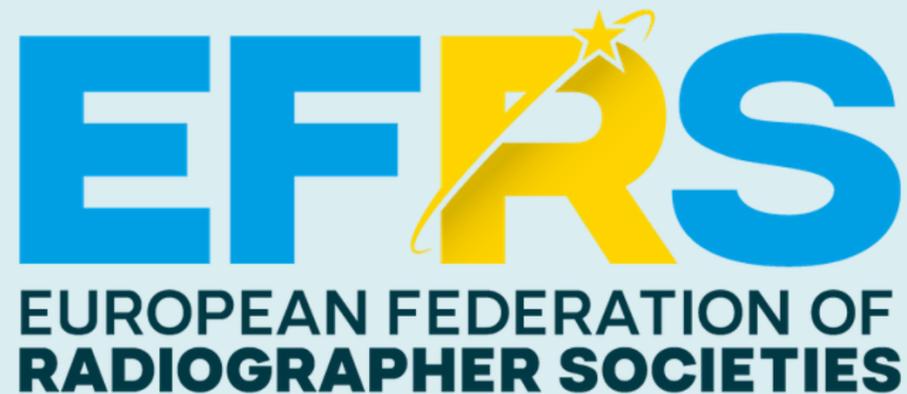

In this section, you can create your own posts or read other members' posts. You can see posts of everyone on the platform and everyone will be able to see yours as well.

When you create a post, you are able to mention specific users. They will receive an e-mail notification and push-up notification. You can add documents and links in your post as well.

To create a post on the wall, click on Publish here. Choose a title for your post and text for your post and write them in Post Title and Text fields. You can also add documents or images by clicking on Add Documents. You can add a link on your post on the Text field as well. Click on Save to publish your post.

On this section, documents are displayed showing the latest added first.

You will be notified by email and/or web-notifications whenever someone comments on your post.

GROUPS

Groups are a big part of the RRN community, they will allow you to create specific groups with several members to address any topic you want.
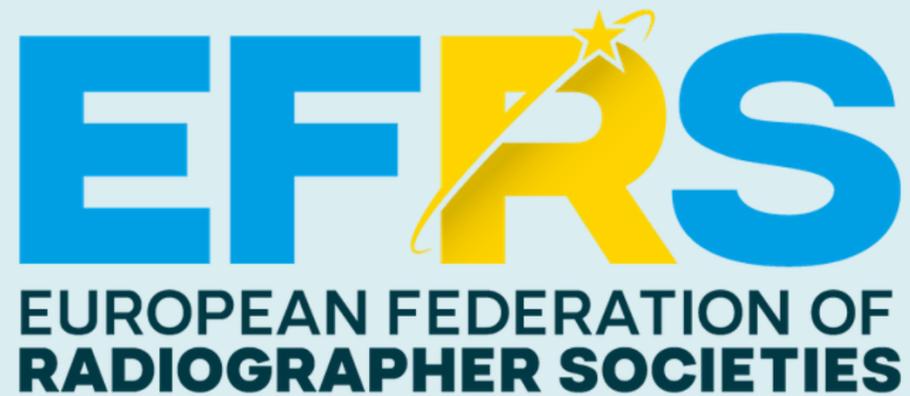

Access groups to see the list of the groups where you are a member, the list of public groups, your pending invitations to groups or to create your own group. From this section you can also share a group if its public from this section, share to the wall or by a private message.

In order to create your own group, you need to click Create group on the right the above corner, type the group title on the Group title field, add a picture by clicking on the ⊡ icon and add members.

To create a post in groups, click on Publish here. Type name and text of your post in Post Title and Text fields. You can add documents by clicking on Add Documents.

You can add links to your post as well.
Click on Save.

GROUPS

You will be notified by email and/or web-notifications whenever you are added to a group.

In order to join a private group, you need to be invited by other members of the group. Notification will appear on your email and invitation will appear in Pending Invitations section.
To join a public group, click on → near the group you want to see. Click on Join Group. If you are sure you want to join, click Yes. The group will automatically appear on My Groups list.
